In the world, there are many kinds of languages, which have sub-languages. They have various specification. In Indonesian there are also several kinds of sub-languages, that is called the local language. Every local language has specification. The local language that discussed is Javanese language, which also has specification. One of its specification is affective on adjective form to show intensity. This form is used in oral communication and it is dialectal. For example, the word lara 'sick', legi 'sweet', dhuwur 'high'. In order to emphasize the meaning, we can add certain vowels as follow:

lara		legi		dhuwur
larā 'very sick'	[lɔrɔ]	legii 'very sweet'	[ləgī]	dhuwuur 'very high'	[d ^h uwūr]
luara 'very sick'	[luɔrɔ]	luégi 'very sweet'	[luəgi]	dhuuwur 'very high'	[dhūwūr]
luarā	[luɔ rɔ]	luegii	[luəgī]	dhuawur	[dhūɔwūr]

'very sick'		'very sweet'		'very high'
laru 'very sick'	[lɔ ru]	legui 'very sweet'	[ləgui]	dhuawuur 'very high'	[dh ɔu wūr]
larā 'very sick'	[lɔ rū]	leguui 'very sweet'	[ləgūi]	dhuwir 'very high'	[dhūwir]
luaru 'very sick'	[luɔ ru]	luogui 'very sweet'	[lūəgūi]	duwiir 'very high'	[dhūwīr]
lari 'very sick'	[lɔ ri]

In learning Javanese language, it is required to understand affective on adjective form. This form has nuances which depends on the speaker. This paper will explain about the formation of affective vocals as well as their construction.
